Can you help us learn more about tick-borne diseases in your local area?

The UK Health Security Agency is investigating exposure to tick-borne diseases, including Lyme disease and tick-borne encephalitis, in people who regularly carry out outdoor recreational activities.

- Are you aged 18 or over?
- Do you regularly carry out recreational activities such as walking, cycling or running in the New Forest/Hampshire area?

What is involved?

- You will be asked to
 - Attend a local venue where the study will be explained
 - Give your consent to take part
 - Fill in a questionnaire about your outdoor activities and exposure to ticks
 - Donate one tube of blood taken by our qualified phlebotomists

To express your interest and preferred venue, please fill out the form at this link
